Books and the Web

Use both books and the web. Searching online can help you find good books — while books can give you new places to look online.

Books and the web both have information that you would have a hard time finding anywhere else

Books are: authoritative, stable, well organized, detailed and portable.

The Web is: easy to access, easy to search, up to date at good sites and a way for you to see things that are far away or locked away.

This program is supported in whole or part by the Institute of Museum and Library Services through the Library Services and Technology Act, administered by the Oregon State Library.
